Sign Permit Information Guide and Process

Sign By-Law

The Clearview Sign By-Law, controls, prohibits and regulates the construction, erection, alteration, demolition, removal, location, relocation, class, type, maintenance of signs and other advertising devices. Some signs are subject to both the sign by-law and a building permit.

Note: All signs must comply with the sign by-law, however not all signs require a building permit. The sign by-law is available on the Clearview Website.

When is a sign building permit required?

- Signs over 7.5 m in height
- Overhanging Signs over 115 kg in weight
- Signs with a face area of over 10 m²

Drawing requirements for a sign building permit application

1. A site plan showing the location of sign in relation to all other structures and the property line (dimensions must be shown).
2. Structural drawings stamped and signed by a professional engineer showing framing and anchorage and foundation requirements.
3. A Professional Engineer of Ontario is required to review the installation and provide a certification letter to the Building Inspector.
